Cards Issued More Queries

Nov. 24 Answered

The greatest single factor in the slowness of some employers in filing their social security act registration blanks before a tonight's midnight deadline appears to be their inability to decide whether or not their class of employees is to be exempt under the provisions of the act.

Failure to file before midnight renders the delinquent employer liable to being forced to prove that such failure was not willful. While the government is not yet in a creative mood, with its act-up of its social machinery still in a tentative stage, keep in mind the fact that the government does have a club—and useful failure to comply with its requirements in this regard can cost you a year in jail and a $10,000 fine.

The deadline for filing social security registration blanks by employers is midnight tonight, and already all clerks and stenographers are at work in the Social Security Department's auxiliary office at 470 Atlantic avenue sorting out, checking, and filing the cards.

This work is being rushed so that the issuance of proper application cards may be begun by November 24, and the government is before the postoffice, Christmas stamps in the annual Christmas mail rush.

Meanwhile, Acting Postmaster Peter F. Tague has been assured of complete cooperation by Massachusetts schools in his far-reaching plan to get information concerning the Social Security Act to parents through their children. At a meeting with 24 school superintendents in the federal building yesterday, he was told he can rely on their every possible assistance.

NEXT WORKER TYPE

In yesterday's article concerning the act, the social security editor discussed types of employment exempt under the law. The first three types—farm labor, domestic service, and casual labor.

The next type of worker exempted is the employee who has already reached the age of 65. In this regard, the only thing to remember is that the employer must stand ready to prove to the government that the employee in question has reached that age.

Another thing that has bothered many employers is the question of what is a vessel, documented under the laws of the United States or any foreign country, and how many of her employees can be called "crew" under the act.

A vessel, so defined by the government, is any means of transportation licensed under the laws of any nation. This includes everyone who works for a living aboard her, from the skipper down to the lowest messboy.

MANY HIGHLIGHTS

All government employees are exempt under the act, except those in the states, federal, state, county, city, town, or any subdivision of the government. And it doesn't make any difference whether they're clerks or clerks or clerks—if they're not paid by the government or any branch of it for what they do, they're exempt.

The next exemption is a knotty one, because there are many barriers to be drawn, and many disputed points have been raised on it. However, if you are in doubt as to your status, it will save trouble for everybody if you file first and argue afterward. This problem is that of organizations.

Nonprofit making organizations specifically engaged in religious, charitable, scientific, literary, or educational work, and community chests, are exempt. But for an organization to be operated on a nonprofit making basis is not enough. It must also be designed for one of the specific purposes.

Thus an organization engaged in putting out propaganda, no matter how worthy the cause, or in co-operating on group advertising, or in influencing legislation, is not exempt. Although it may not make a profit, for instance, labor organizations are not exempt, nor are those to a recent ruling.

The last class exempt is the employees of railroad or allied companies, who are already covered by the carrier's tax act. These employees already know of their status under this act.

Tomorrow further problems raised by the social security act will be discussed in the Boston Sunday Advertiser. If there is any individual problem you need to be answered, address it to the Social Security Editor of the Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser.

Autos in Path
Save Stricken Man

Lawrence, Nov. 21—James J. Keegan, a Woodland street car engineer, owed his life today to good luck which placed two parked automobiles in the path of his car when he collapsed at the wheel, overcome by a sudden illness.

His machine hit the others and came to a stop a few feet from a deep canal, into which it would otherwise have plunged carrying him to almost certain death.

Following are some of the questions asked by Boston Evening American readers about the social security act. If you have any questions of your own, address them to the social security editor of the Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop square.

Q.—What does a man 63 years old have to do to come under the social security act? My husband is 63 and my understanding is he would have to work five separate years before getting a pension, but will not be able to do so. Please explain this.

A.—Your husband applies for a life number like all other employees under the age of 65, and he pays the same tax that they do. When he is 65, no matter whether he retires or not, he receives a lump sum payment equal to three and one-half times the amount he has earned between January 1, 1917, and his 65th birthday. He does not get a pension.

Q.—My wife came from Canada and worked under a company that allowed her to work. We were married in 1931, but of course that does not make her a citizen. She was in under the pension plan of social security act and if she remains in this way will this be "stranded"?

WIFE'S STATUS
A.—Your wife's nationality makes no difference under the Social Security Act. The government does not care for the purposes of this act where she came from or whether she was ever naturalized. The government is only interested in paying workers pensions on the basis of money they have earned.

Your wife registers in the regular way, pays the same tax and is eligible for the pension when she is 65. The act works as a sort of insurance plan and is not based on any citizenship claim on the government.

Q.—In the case of a head of a one state estate in Providence, Rhode Island, where the estate is in another, where are the returns filed and the taxes paid? Our firm has a head office in Providence and a branch in Boston. What does it do?

A.—Each office files its registration blanks and tax returns with the nearest collector of internal revenue. In the case of the registration blanks, this is done through the postoffice. The returns are sent to the collector direct.

Q.—What does a firm do if its payroll is in fractions of a dollar? Is the tax based on the nearest cent?

A.—You figure your tax on every cent, and then when you pay it, pay to the nearest cent. Four-tenths of a cent in the final return is rounded off, half a cent or more is paid.

Q.—I am working for a firm that is a branch office in Providence, Rhode Island, and I have a chance to go there at some future time. What will happen to the money I have paid in toward my pension if I go there? Will I have to pay the tax if I am transferred?

A.—Your status will be unchanged, no matter where your firm sends you for 12 weeks. Cartoons are to be submitted only in complete groups of 72. Hold them until you have the 72. Then send or bring them to Movie Title & Identity Editor, Boston American, 5 Winthrop Square, Boston, Mass., P. O. Box 1099. Be sure to write your name and address clearly on your entry. All entries must be in the Boston American office by midnight, Wednesday, January 27, or postmarked not later than January 27, midnight. It is understood that all entries in this test are to become the property of the Boston Evening American. No entries will be returned. Each entry must be accompanied by some appropriate slogan of not more than ten words suitable for publishing the moving picture industry. For example: "Movies, the Nation's Favorite Recreation" or "Movies, they amuse and educate."

Only ONE slogan can be submitted with each complete entry of 72 cartoons. A special blank, on which your slogan may be written, will appear with the last cartoon in the set, number 72.

6. Each entry should be sent by first class mail—postage prepaid. Entries with insufficient postage will be returned by the post-office department. Postage may tend in for many sets, but they will not be considered until they are sent by first class mail and not more than one prize will be awarded in a family.

7. Accuracy will count. Neatness will count. No elaborate sets are necessary. Simplicity is best.

8. You need not purchase the Boston American to compete. You may copy or trace the cartoons from the original in the Boston American and assemble the set of pictures from the copies you have made. Copies of the Boston American may be examined at Boston American offices or public libraries free of charge.

9. The judges will be a committee appointed by the Boston American. Their decision will be final. In the event of a tie by two or more contestants for any position in the list of winners, the prize or prizes next in order will be combined in a lump sum and then evenly distributed among those tying.

The entry of a participant is an acknowledgment and complete acceptance of all rules governing this test, made now or at any time at the discretion of the judges.

ADVICE LOVE and MARRIAGE :-: By Beatrice Fairfax

Daughters Chief Source Of Worry, Declares Salem Mother

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"Not so long ago we used to worry about our sons, and stayed awake at night fearing they would elope with chorus girls and bring them home for us to support."

"But today, we worry about our daughters—not for fear they will elope, but that they won't stay eloped after they've once departed."

That is the complaint of the mother who writes me a long and interesting letter today. Her problem is typical for mothers everywhere seem to be finding their daughters as much a source of worry as their sons.

Personally, I refuse to become discouraged about young people. There is a general bluff of sophistication among youth. It may be more widespread than the pretense of your generation and mine.

But there really isn't anything fundamentally wrong.

CONDUCT "BATTERED"

Dozens of young women who now seem wild and untamed will settle down a few years hence and become good wives and mothers. A baby is a great mild-acting worker, say what you will. Remember the "flappers" of the '20s? They were just—hopelessly lost, you said. But look at them today. Good, respectable mothers. Brave, upright business women. Intelligent, capable, efficient teachers. When the fashion changed, they changed.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX: We broke up on account of a misunderstanding, and I married another man. I have now been a widow for a number of years, and the old sweetheart, married happily, has turned up in the city where I and our mutual friends live.

I always went to his parties, but now that the old beau of mine and his wife are here, they no longer invite me. They say it might be embarrassing to his wife. I wonder if I am justified in feeling hurt. I think it is rather narrow of these people to leave me out of everything on account of the reappearance of my old sweetheart. I am now a MARY.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX: It seems to me either like making a mountain out of molehill or like you are out of the fun just because an old beau has turned up in the town.

People certainly do not go in these lengths today to avoid the meeting of even divorced couples. Take you, I think this conduct is just narrow-minded.

Don't quarrel with your old friends; they'll probably come around in time.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX: My youngest brother has got himself pretty badly entangled in an affair with an older woman. Mother does nothing but all at once and very often father's young folk can hang himself in the coils of his own knotting.

But I feel that a boy of 19 should not be allowed to ruin his life in this fashion. Proof of this woman's old youth is not wanting.

Shall I tell her that I am in possession of these facts, or lay them before my brother? The rest of the family may take this view.

Home Institute Children's Behavior

"HOW did you ever accomplish such wonders with those harum-scarum youngsters of yours?" "Why, they behave so quiet and mannerly when you have them—yet they are normal and so full of life and energy when outdoors with their playmates."

Children are exuberant and like to draw attention to themselves. They will even enjoy a spanking if it focuses the spotlight on them. They do not understand long for the warm outpouring of a loving interest by you in their little affairs. It is quite unconsciously felt cheated if they don't get it. A warm, understanding and truly friendly attitude when in the presence of your children makes it a simple matter to rid them of the many little annoying habits that set a mother wild with impatience.

Of course, if you are bored with them, if you resent the restrictions their existence imposes on you, if you interfere with other things you want to do, your attitude will not meet their needs. These feelings, if yours will enter at your relations with your children. Your tact, sense of humor and imagination will be evolved up in your own importance.

We have just issued a new 40-page booklet, "Your Child's First Years." It contains many secrets of how a mother can give her own understanding of the difference between the adult world and the child world.

Send for our booklet, "Your Child's First Years," to Boston Evening American, Home Institute, Box 108, West New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

Bridge A Difficult Analysis

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Average players would take a more cheerful view of their own perplexities at the Bridge table if they knew how brain-racking the world's greatest experts find certain hands.

I recall one a few years ago that for a time I feared would lead to a duel between two outstanding masters (who must remain nameless).

One said that on a certain opening lead a five club contract would be undefeatable. The other averred that if he could not be carried out he would defend to the death.

One was right, of course, and the other wrong, but it is easy to see how the latter could have erred in his analysis. Certainly, declarer's play would have had to be carried out to the death.

CHOCOLATE DIPPED CANDIES MADE AT HOME

Art of Sugar Cookery Made Clear

By MARTHA LEE

AS THE holiday season rolls around amateur cooks are busy at their favorite pastime, candy making. It's an intricate art for most people, acquired after years of experience, for it requires patience and precision along with a knowledge of sugar cookery.

But there's a new booklet just out which gives the most detailed and simplified directions for chocolate and chocolate dipped candies. The assortment is well chosen and includes only those kinds of candies that are suitable for making at home.

You'll want it, I know, for its clear discussion of fondant making and chocolate dipping, answering all those frequently asked questions. Why are my chocolates dark gray? Why does the chocolate crack and why does the fondant show through, etc.?

From all the trouble of the process, the chocolate is called for in the semi-sweet specially prepared for home candy making.

CHOCOLATE WALNUT PATTERNS

1 egg white

2 tablespoons water

1 cup semi-sweet chocolate, melted

1 teaspoon vanilla

1 cup sifted confectioner's sugar (about)

1/2 cup walnuts

Best egg white slightly; add water, chocolate and vanilla and mix well. Add sugar gradually, stirring until stiff enough to hold its shape, then add vanilla. Beat 4 minutes.

For assortment of patterns, melt chocolate and vanilla in 1/2 of mixture and add pink coloring and whiteberry extract, stirring, adding 1/2 of mixture, add green coloring and peppermint extract. Prepare as above, using water, vanilla, green coloring and peppermint extract.

Break into small irregular pieces. Makes about 15 pounds candy.

CHOCOLATE COCONUT GLOSSIES

12 squares semi-sweet chocolate

1 1/2 cups sweetened condensed milk

1 can shredded coconut

1 teaspoon vanilla

Heat chocolate over boiling water until partly melted, then remove from boiling water and stir rapidly until entirely melted. Add milk and beat; then add coconut and vanilla. Drop from spoon on waxed paper. Cool until firm. Makes 60.

CHOCOLATE CARAMELS

1 cup sugar

1/2 cup light corn syrup

1/2 cup heavy cream

1/2 cup heavy cream

Combine sugar, corn syrup, chocolate, salt and 1/2 cup cream. Place over low flame and stir constantly until sugar is dissolved and mixture boils. Continue boiling until a small amount of mixture forms a soft ball (235 deg. F.). Strain constantly. Add 1/2 cup cream and again boil to 235 deg. F., stirring constantly. Add remaining 1/2 cup cream and boil until mixture forms a firm ball (245 deg. F.). Strain constantly. Do not scrape the pan. Pour into slightly buttered pan, 8 x 4 inches. Do not scrape the pan. Let stand until cool. Mark with knife in 1/2 inch squares and turn out on cold slab, turning top.

NEURITIS Is Disorder of Nerves

By ROYAL C. COPLAND, M.D.

SCARCELY a day passes that I do not receive a letter requesting information about neuritis.

"Is neuritis a serious disorder; does it mean permanent disability; how can I overcome it and what causes it?" These are the usual questions asked.

Neuritis, as its name indicates, is an inflammation of a nerve. One or many nerves may be involved. The pain is present in the region of the disturbed nerve, usually involving the skin covering the inflamed structure.

Neuritis is not a serious disease, but if neglected, it may lead to prolonged disability and, in rare cases, to death. If carefully treated, the disorder becomes chronic in nature, and, like other chronic ailments, is difficult to cure. For this reason, it is always advisable to consult your physician early and carefully follow his instructions.

Bea is told that neuritis is not a trivial disorder. It may follow a fall, blow or severe injury. In certain instances, it is due to absorption of poisons from within the system. For example, neuritis is a common complication of chronic alcoholism, lead poisoning and mercury poisoning. In fact, it may follow the taking of any of the following:

I want to assure you that, if neuritis is present, the cure is probable unless the cause is the trouble is discovered by a competent physician. In addition to exposing to your doctor for an examination, you should also report to your dentist and have all infected and ill teeth given proper attention.

Another thing, . . . I am sure, should be noted in a fall, blow or severe injury. In certain instances, it is due to absorption of poisons from within the system. Worcester, Nov. 21—Cleo O'Donnell, for many years the big pumpkins at Holy Cross, comes back to Fitton Field this afternoon cast in a strange role.

St. Anselm is undrafted and undrafted on only twice, both by Patriots.

High Hopes

It's a team which, through superior tackling and blocking has high hopes of turning the tables on a Bowl-conscious Holy Cross team which will take the field at odds of about 12 to 5 or even higher.

All-Time PRODUCTION Peak Set

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

There is a lot of important industrial news in the statement of Frank D. Comerford, president of Boston Edison, that the company on Wednesday of this week touched an all-time production peak.

Mr. Comerford points out the creation of a new record in advance of December, usually the peak month of the year, confirms other indications of accelerated improvement in 1935.

Besides pointing to local business gains the figures of his power plant company are significant evidence of increasing use of electricity for a variety of purposes. Behind the bare figures there is a story of demand for private power plants in favor of the company's service. There also is evidence that the modern manner of a demand for electricity is being met by the use of a new type of installation.

While on utilities a few remarks may be made. The Associated Press agency, which has been reporting on the Boston Edison American will not be alone. Since July 12 the average has been a narrow sideways roll. The market has been slow, steady, and has been held in the hands of the market. The market has been slow, steady, and has been held in the hands of the market.

Networth—W. T. Grant is said to be in a particularly good position to benefit from expanded production of goods. The company's reported dividends are well integrated. The Signal has climbed in the Boston market. This week has traders gunged. The bulls on National are the real thing when it comes to enthusiasm. All they expect the company to show is $1.50 per share. The company is expected to show a profit of $1.50 per share.

As we write this paragraph the market has been slow, steady, and has been held in the hands of the market. The market has been slow, steady, and has been held in the hands of the market. The market has been slow, steady, and has been held in the hands of the market.

Price Trend UPWARD TRADING PACE SLOW

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

New York, Nov. 21—Trading volume moderate further today, as the stock market recovered after 3 days of declining prices. Gains in most industries were limited to less than a point.

Steele, motors, utilities, papers and rails were leaders. A few volatile "blue chips," notably Allied Chemical with a three-point turn, scored wide gains.

In the power group American Water Works, North American and Edison Electric were best, the last named rising about a point. The steel group, however, was a disappointment. General Motors rose a point, General Motors rose a point, General Motors rose a point.

Carrier shares moved upward on the bid of Southern Railway and Pennsylvania. The steel group, however, was a disappointment. General Motors rose a point, General Motors rose a point, General Motors rose a point.

Large fractional gains were registered in the steel group. The steel group, however, was a disappointment. General Motors rose a point, General Motors rose a point, General Motors rose a point.

While question marks continued to surround trading sentiment, the steel group, however, was a disappointment. General Motors rose a point, General Motors rose a point, General Motors rose a point.

Aircraft shares received attention in view of the movement of the market. The steel group, however, was a disappointment. General Motors rose a point, General Motors rose a point, General Motors rose a point.

As we write this paragraph the market has been slow, steady, and has been held in the hands of the market. The market has been slow, steady, and has been held in the hands of the market. The market has been slow, steady, and has been held in the hands of the market.
